

EDWARD DEMING ANDREWS
1617 CHAPEL STREET
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Dear Mr. Lawton -

I am collecting data for an article on Shaker furniture which may come out in "Antiques," and am writing you particularly to find out if you have any available information, or can suggest references, concerning this industry in the old Shirley families.

In the first place, was furniture manufactured at all in that branch of the sect? It was a

Dear Mr. Lawton,

I am collecting data for an article on Shaker furniture which may come out in "Antiques," and am writing you particularly to find out if you have any available information, or can suggest references concerning this industry in the old Shirley families.

In the first place, was furniture manufactured at all in that branch of the sect? It was a common industry, I know, but evidently not universal. I would also like to find out, in case it was made there, something about the scale on which this occupation was carried on, the kinds of furniture constructed, methods of manufacture, materials, disposition of product, prices, etc.

EDWARD DEMING ANDREWS
1617 CHAPEL STREET
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

I remember, in the memorable Camp Devens days, that you possessed several rare books and documents about the life of the Shirley Shakers, common industry, I know, but evidently not universal. I would also like to find out, in case it was made there, something about the scale on which this occupation was carried on, the kinds of furniture constructed, methods of manufacture, materials, disposition of product, prices, etc.

I remember, in the memorable Camp Devens days, that you possessed several rare books and documents about the life of the Shirley Shakers,

EDWARD DEMING ANDREWS
1617 CHAPEL STREET
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

relating mainly, however - am I not
right? - to their social and religious practices. Perhaps, if there is no
local literature on this subject
of furniture, it is still possible
through oral tradition, to collect some pertinent facts. It is quite necessary for me to correlate what I know of the industry in such places as Mt. Lebanon, N.Y. and Harvard, Mass. with as much data as possible from the other settlements.

relating mainly, however - am I not
right? - to their social and religious practices. Perhaps if there is no
local literature on this subject
of furniture, it is still possible
through oral tradition, to collect
some pertinent facts. It is quite necessary for me to correlate what I know of the industry in such places as Mt. Lebanon, N.Y. and Harvard, Mass. with as much data as Possible from the other settlements.

EDWARD DEMING ANDREWS
1617 CHAPEL STREET
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

It will be interesting to note, among other things, how much standardization there was in this comparatively early industry. You do not happen to know whether there are any cuts or sketches of early Shaker chairs, tables, chests of drawers or stools — contemporary pictures, I mean?

This writing about and collecting old furniture is still a side-line with us, but always increasing in interest. I am engaged in getting out a doctor's dissertation in education

It will be interesting to write, among other things, how much standardization there was in this comparatively early industry. You do not happen to know ~~whether~~ where there are any cuts or sketches of early Shaker chairs, tables, chests of drawers or stools — contemporary practices, I mean?

This writing about and collecting old furniture is still a side-line with us, but always increasing in interest. I am engaged in getting out a doctor's dissertation in education

EDWARD DEMING ANDREWS
1617 CHAPEL STREET
NEW HAVEN, CONN.

but have given up teaching for this year. We are just getting settled in a new home after a rather trying autumn. Both children and I were sick, and my mother died about three weeks ago after a short illness, though she had not been well for two years.

We have enjoyed greatly your delightful contributions to "The Antiquarian" and have long contemplated a visit which I hope may materialize before next summer is over. Remember us to Shirley. Sincerely your friend
Ted Andrews

But have given up teaching for this year. We are just getting settled in a new home after a rather trying autumn. Both children and I were sick, and my mother died about three weeks ago after a short illness, though she had not been well for two years.

We have enjoyed greatly your delightful contributions to "The Antiquarian" and have long contemplated a visit which I hope may materialize before next summer is over. Remember us to Shirley. Sincerely your friend

Ted Andrews